The so-called "after-glow" that was witnessed

COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, December 8, 1883. The business of the past week has not possessed the animation usual at this time of the year. The arrival of one steamer from the Colonies and another from the Coast, made matters lively for the first two or three days of the week. A large credit sale of groceries was held by Mr. E.P. Adams on Wednesday last, and good prices were realized. On I hursday a sale of dry goods was held at the store of Messrs, B. F. Ehlers & Co , and the prices obtained go to prove that some people prefer baying at anction than privately.

The labor market has been recruited to a small extent by the return of the brig Hazard from the New Hebrides with 128 adult laborers. The length of the voyage and the comparatively small number of people imported makes it a dear venture for the Planters' Labor and Supply Company Mr. Hoffoung, the agent for Portuguese labor, is in the city, awaiting the development of arrangements for a further supply of labor from the Azores. Upwards of one hundred Chinese arrived from San Francisco and a similar number left for China per back Freidrich-

Iwa vessels laden with lumber arrived from the round during the week. The departures for foreign ports comprise the Fried-rick for Hongkong, the steamship Alameda, steamship Australia, bark Kalakana for San Francisco, and the City A. M. of Sydney for the Colonies The steamship Likelike has commenced running again to windward ports, and on her next return trip she is exparted to arrive on Saturday morning, in order to be in time to tranship her cargo to the Mariposa, sailing on the

The Executive Committee reported that no assistance was forthcoming from the German residents. The Special Committee appointed to co-operate with the Germans believed that nothing could be done in the way of co-operation with the Germans. Another Special Committee reported that a writ of mandamus was about to be applied for to compel Judge Hardy, on Kausi, to grant an appeal to the German laborers. Mr. Ward proposed a resolution. "That in future, socialistic questions should not be discussed by the Union,' which was carried unanimously. On the passage of this resolution, Mr. Danielwitz resigned his office as President and Mr. Crowley took his place. The Union expressed having the utmost confidence in Miss Breeze's work and denied having stated anything to the contrary.

A base-ball match was played on Saturday last between a team from Iolani College and a team of boys selected from the public outside of the baseball clubs. There was good sport afforded to players and spectators, the game resulting in favor of the Eichep's boys. The score stood 24 to 10. The youngster who pitched for the school team was the admiration of the field. He maintained his post with credit throughout the whole nine innings, and he promises to i a great acquisition to the base-ball players of ! is city.

"As I came up in the train to-day," said Canon Wilberforce, in the course of a speech at a recent public meeting. "I read in my newspaper that two or three lads were brought up before the magistrote for playing pitch and toss in the street. I turn over the sheet, and I find the betting transactions upon the coming Derby. I find things chronicled in the same leaded type-the most important news concerning the dealings of Parliament and the odds that are being laid against horses in a well-known West End racing club; and printed there upon the same sheet is the account of these little fellows being punished for playing at pitch and toss." It is difficult not to agree with Canon Wilberforce that the moral instinct which permits such strange obliquities is disorganized. It amounts to a warping of the national conscience M. S. The Friend for December reached us yesterday. This number closes the thirty-third volume of the new series. The accountant shows a deficit of $143 41 in the amounts received, as compared with expenditures during the past three years. The editor expresses a hope that "his readers and friends in the future, will be as generous, kind and lenient as in former years." A few remarks about Moneure D. Conway's "Silent City" shows that the editor of the Friend and Mr. Conway have different opinions about the observance of the opinion of the Friend "our weeklies and dailies are too ephemeral. Our monthlies are too limited in their range of discussion.

On the complaint of the second mate of the British ship "Henry James." the British Commissioner held a Court on Thursday. The hearing of the plaintiff's case occupied the whole of the day and the case was continued yesterday. The complainant had been disrated for alleged misconduct and claims restitution of his position and damages. The case has a sensational character and there are about fifty different versions of the story out of which it arose, current about town. These stories, so far as can be ascertained from authentic sources, all vary from the truth.

ing account of the accident, received by a lady residing here from a friend in Victoria, B. C., will be read with much interest by those who knew this amiable and intrepid officer. After speaking of the visit of the Swiftsure, and the accident to Lieutenant Lee, the writer goes on to say :- " He was out driving on a dark night-so dark that he could not see the road. He drove into a deep ditch-one of the deepest near Victoria. The horses and carriage went down; but he, after getting out, went back to get the horses out. Whilst doing this, he was kicked in his face, breaking his jaw, tearing his nose completely from his face, and putting out one eye. Still keeping his senses, he held his face in his hands, and walked to a house at some distance, where he saw a light, and the lady, heaving his growns, woke her husband, who went for assistance, and the Lieutenant was taken to the Hospital, where they learned who he was. It is said that while the doctors were sewing up his face he put his own fingers to his mouth to keep his cuts in place. They removed him to the Naval Hospital, and when Admiral Lyons saw him he fainted. In about a week inflammation set in, and he died. His funeral took place from the Hospital, and it was a beautiful sight to behold. His coffin was conveyed on a gun-carriage drawn by sailors. The officers were his pall-bearers. The flags in every part of the city were at half-mast. The church was crowded, Merchant street has at last received the atten- and the floral decorations were lovely. 'Peace be

Mules vs. Horses for 'Buss Work. MR. EDITOR :- Now that the Dodd Line of Omnibusses is an established fact the poople don't consider it the correct thing for mules to be substituted for horses. Mules are all very well for plantation hire. A few days since one of those playful Jacks tried to brush a fly off his ear, using his hind hoof for the purpose. The result was he straddled the pole and refused to be lifted out of his new position, consequently he had to be carried home by the balance of the team. Nervous passengers not accustomed to this mode of travelling recommend that Mr. Dodd sell the mules and use in their place good tractable horses. This advice is gratis from a regular traveler per 'buss line. AQLE HORI
